Economic Information as the Basis for decision-making

Economic information is an important instrument for facilitating concrete delivery and credit decisions. This information serves as the basis for trusting business relationships and helps with risks assessments. It is important to have access to current and relevant information at all times. dun & brad-street®, the world's largest provider of business intelligence and analytics, supplies this information reliably and quickly with high-quality data. This information offers a solid decision-making basis for negotiating conditions as well as managing and controlling risks with a business partner.

Automate Economic Data Requests in Oracle E-Business

An interface to dun & bradstreet®, the world's leading provider of business intelligence and analytics, gives users of Oracle E-Business Suite convenient access to up-to-date, premium highquality economic information, e.g. to assess risk, run a credit check and determine payment targets.

The requests are started in E-Business Suite and supply all available information to assess the business partner directly in EBS. If there are changes in important key performance indicators, a notification will also be sent automatically right to the E-Business Suite. This lets companies act proactively with a customer and respond promptly when risks change.
